PWAC Names Holly Bennett and Michael Totzke Finalists for Editor of the Year Award

The Professional Writers Association of Canada (PWAC) today named two finalists for its Editor of the Year Award. They are:

- Holly Bennett, Editor-in-Chief of Today's Parent Special Editions
- Michael Totzke, Editor of Canadian Interiors

“This is a unique editing award because it comes from Canada’s writers,” said PWAC President Tanya Gulliver. “Freelance writers from across the country submitted nominations for deserving editors, and Michael and Holly rose to the top.”

The winner will be named during the Writers’ Industry Awards Luncheon at the MagNet magazine conference on June 4 in Toronto.

PWAC’s Editor of the Year Award brings national recognition and praise to outstanding editorial professionals. Written nominations are submitted by PWAC members and a panel of three member judges evaluate the nominees based on criteria that includes editing and communications skills, the ability to bring out the best in writers, and the fairness of pay rates and contracts.

PWAC, established in 1976, is the national organization representing over 600 freelance writers and journalists in Canada.
